

APPLICATION FOR FACILITATORS Labour Education Program

The B.C. Federation of Labour (BCFED) is constantly seeking young workers (18-30 years) to facilitate workshops in high schools about labour education.

The Program trains young workers to facilitate an interactive workshop in BC's high schools on Labour Education. It also provides Employee Action & Rights Network Organizer (EARN) training as students often come forward during these sessions with questions about issues they are having at work.

Over the past six years, the Program's young workers have spoken to over 25,000 high school students in 22 communities across the province.

The goal of this Program is to educate young workers and students about their rights in the workplace.

We are currently seeking to identify young workers who are interested in facilitating these workshops. Our goal is to have a diverse group of facilitators from across the province.

The B.C. Federation of Labour will provide the following:

- EARN organizer training;
- A workshop on training in facilitation skills, as well as tools to effectively deliver information to high school students;
- Training on how to talk about labour history, the role of unions in society, and employment standards; and
- Costs to cover travel, lost wages, accommodation and per diem.

The BCFED will send all applications to unions for authorization.
